About the London Design Festival 2011

17–25 September 2011

The V&A is delighted to welcome the London Design Festival, a nine-day festival that celebrates London as the creative capital of the world. As the Hub of the Festival, the V&A is the first port-of-call for Festival visitors: the place to meet, pick up information, visit inspiring installations and events, and to enjoy the Festival atmosphere.

Throughout the Museum there is an array of specially commissioned installations and displays to enjoy, and a broad programme of special events, talks and workshops that take place throughout the week in the bright, modern setting of the V&A's Sackler Centre, and in the Museum.

Exhibition Road
Postmodern Café by Antonino Cardillo

The London Design Festival's dedicated entrance to the Museum at Exhibition Road plays host to the Postmodern Café, in homage to the Italian masters of the movement; the café is a playful rendition of a colourful environment, for relaxation, repose and refreshment. Contemporary interpretations of Postmodern design co-exist with past realities, including elements designed for firms with roots in Postmodernism active today.
Architect: Antonino Cardillo
Supported by Alessi, Amtico, Hitch Mylius
